Teaching with Fullmind: what to look forward to

Fullmind connects certified K-12 teachers with schools and districts across the United States, teaching live from home. Every Fullmind educator supports all learners: whether you teach a whole class, a small group or one student, most classes include students with IEPs.

Teach from home

Keep doing what you love, live and online, without the commute.

Teach what you're certified in

Choose assignments that match your certification and subject as schools and districts post them.

Ownership in how you teach

Whole classes, small groups or one-on-one: find the format that fits you, and switch it up for variety.

Full-day or part-time

Roles range from full school days to a few hours, following each district's calendar.

Part of the school team

Teach the district's curriculum or materials you curate to state standards, and partner with the school team.

Every subject, every grade

Elementary, math, science, ELA, social studies, world languages and more, from kindergarten through 12th grade.

HOW YOU MIGHT TEACH

Whole class, small group or one-on-one

Whole class

Lead a full class live in a school with an open position, with an in-person facilitator in the room.

Small group

Targeted, live instruction for a few students at a time, to help them catch up or get ahead.

One-on-one

Individual instruction built around one student's needs, including homebound learners.

Every format, every learner

Any format can include students with disabilities, so every educator plans for IEPs and 504 plans.

BY GRADE BAND

What teaching looks like

K – 5

Elementary

Build foundations in reading, writing and math, with routines and warmth that help young learners thrive online.

6 – 8

Middle school

Teach core subjects as students take on more independence, keeping lessons active and relationships strong.

9 – 12

High school

Lead courses students need to graduate, from core subjects to electives and credit recovery.

WHAT YOU'LL DO

- Teach live, using the district's curriculum or materials aligned to state standards
- Partner with an in-person facilitator in the classroom
- Support students with IEPs and 504 plans alongside school teams
- Plan engaging lessons and record student progress
- Join district professional development and faculty meetings
- Keep students and families informed, when applicable, through a secure platform

Specialized certifications welcome

Schools also need teachers certified in special education and bilingual education, among others.

You won't teach alone

Resources to understand each district's expectations, instructional support, a real support team and a community of fellow Fullmind educators.

WHAT WE LOOK FOR

- A valid state certification or license for what you teach
- At least 3 years of experience as a professional educator
- A short virtual teaching demonstration
- A background check

OUR COMMITMENTS TO STUDENT SAFETY

- A professional, distraction-free classroom, with camera and microphone on
- All communication stays inside a secure platform; personal contact details are never exchanged
- Sessions are recorded to protect students and teachers
- A clear protocol to act quickly if a student is in crisis
